Name : _____

Zero Conditionals

The zero conditional refers to general habits or scientific truths. We use the simple present tense in both parts of a zero-conditional sentence. Zero conditionals are formed with "if" or "when".

Example: you/freeze water/turn into ice

If you freeze water, it turns into ice.

Make a zero-conditional sentence using each set of words or phrases.

1) Chris/tired/take a break

_____

2) It/snows/we/go sledding

_____

3) doesn't rain/long time/plants/die

_____

4) Water/boil/heat

_____

5) mix two colors/get/a new color

_____

6) People/go/to the doctor's/don't feel well

_____