Underline the metaphors in the poem.

Little Tony was out on a stroll with Mom.
The moon was about to rise, and when it did,
It cast a magic spell on him, "Mom, the moon,
I guess, is a big ball of brilliance", said the kid.

The world is an amazing county fair.
We meet, greet but after a while we part.
The funhouse and the rides are short-lived.
For every mortal should someday depart.
